Pastor Warns OU Students On Parking

Rev. D. Wright Lunsford, pastor of the First Christian Church, 6630 Dodge Street, warned University of Omaha students this week if they continued to disregard notices of no parking placed on their windshields all church-grounds parking privileges will be revoked.

In a meeting Wednesday afternoon with the Gateway staff, Rev. Lunsford said, "If the parking violations do not cease we will have to cut out all parking."

Rev. Lunsford's warning came on the heels of an incident last week in which a number of student cars were towed from the parking lot of St. Margaret Mary's Church.

Render Service

"We have never towed cars away," Rev. Lunsford said, adding he hoped he would never have to resort to this practice.

Rev. Lunsford said he was glad he could render a service to the university and students in providing parking spaces close to the campus. He said students must remember the "east lot of the church and the driveways are off limits."

He explained the east lot is reserved for church women who meet during the day and the drives must be kept clear for service and delivery trucks.

The minister said signs would be posted in the next few days that would warn students of reserved or no parking zones.

New Signs

He said plans include "No Parking Anytime" signs in the driveway on the north side of the church. He said other signs would be posted telling students the east parking lot of the church is off limits.

Other signs to be posted will be of the temporary variety which will close the lots on days funerals are held or large church meetings are planned.

Rev. Lunsford added most of the students have co-operated with church officials but the small number who do not are the ones that will be responsible for the revocation of parking privileges.

50 OU Students' Cars Towed Away

Some 50 University of Omaha students will be about six hundred dollars poorer this week after paying 12 dollars each to retrieve their cars towed away by Omaha Police from St. Margaret Mary's Church parking lot last Wednesday.

Sgt. Darrell Brock, Omaha Police Department, said the cars were removed from the lot on a trespassing charge at the request of Mr. C. G. Gernon, superintendent of the church building and grounds.

Gernon told the Gateway that he acted under orders from Father Gerald Noonan to have the cars removed from the lot.

He said the church has been bucking the problem of student cars for more than eight years.

Mr. Gernon indicated the church would stand pat on its decision to take action against violators and those who persist in ignoring the warning signs.

No World Affairs Talk November 4

Due to the General Elections on November 3, the University of Omaha announced there will be no World Affairs Institute on Wednesday evening, November 4.

Elmwood Source Of 'The Big Stink'

By Larry Porter

The fortunate persons at the homecoming game between Omaha University and Drake last week were those with colds. They only had to take defeat.

Healthy OU fans were not only saddled with the loss, but also had to take substantial doses of a scent carried from Elmwood Park by a southerly breeze.

OU students planning to attend the game tomorrow had better try to catch a cold tonight because the smell will still be mingled with the aromas of hot dogs and popcorn.

Tony Popek, head greenskeeper of Elmwood Park Golf Course, said he is using feed lot manure to fill some holes on the northeast side of the course.

"Manure is the only thing that will hold under a heavy rain," Popek explained. "If we put clay or black dirt in the eroded area, it would wash out after the first heavy rain."

He said the manure—about 12 truckloads—will be leveled sometime next week. Plans then are to cover the manure with dirt, thus eliminating some of the smell. But Popek warned the smell will still linger for at least another month.

In the interest of soil conservation, students should be willing to put up with the aroma. But retribution still has its merits.

Popek was one of the fans sitting in the stands last Saturday, and he will be there again tomorrow. The man responsible for the "big stink" will suffer, too.

OU Debators Host 10th Annual Meet

Some 200 debaters, representing 25 colleges and universities from seven mid-western states will be on campus today and tomorrow to compete in the 10th Annual Kickoff Speech and Debate Tournament.

Trophies will be awarded in the areas of Class A and B debate, oratory, men's and women's extemporaneous speakings and discussion.

The topic of debate is "Resolved: That the Federal Government Should Promote a Program of Public Work for the Unemployed."

Omaha University will be represented in Class A debates by John Hubert and Paul Maye. OU debaters competing in Class B divisions include: Ed Reickes, DeReef Greene, Janet Volte, Jim Foral, Steve Boguchwal, Chuck Eckels, Denny Adams, Mary Jo Brent, Walt Bjerkland, Dallas Blevins, Lynn Gorton and Lyle Jewal.

Pflasterer: New Permits Here They'll Be Mailed To Students

By Dick Smith

The sticky problem of parking stickers at the University of Omaha is about to be alleviated.

Dean of Student Personnel Donald L. Pflasterer announced Tuesday new stickers have arrived and his office is currently involved in mailing out the 72 hundred stickers needed to replace the illegal windshield permits.

Dean Pflasterer said the decision to mail the permits to students was reached after a meeting of the university parking committee.

He said a previous plan to have students pick up new stickers at his office was abandoned due to the time it would take to distribute the new permits.

Dean Pflasterer added that students should not come to his office to pick up their new permits.

"We hope we will have them all mailed out by November 5," he added.

Instructions, Too

A letter of instructions on where the new permits are to be placed will be enclosed with the stickers.

Inside Activities Discussed By Homecoming Candidate

By Ellen Goeser

Being a candidate for homecoming Princess is a mixed experience. Campaigning was awful because I felt people thought I was only being friendly to them for one reason—their vote. But elections come and go, and it was certainly a relief to have this one end.

The greatest part of being a candidate was being in the ceremonies—the chuck wagon supper, the crowning and the dance. Most important was the crowning at the Council Fire.

Before announcing the winner a large pep rally was held. As a candidate, I didn't get to take part because I had to put on the red garment. We watched a little of the rally from inside the Conference Center.

Then came the time to go to the tent. As I waited to go through the crowd, I couldn't help but be nervous. There were a lot of people at the rally.

As my name was called, I grabbed my escort, a huge center on the football team and ran for the tent. All the other football players were razing him.

After running down the bank, I kinda fell into the tent. Inside the Princess's robe was ready for use and the traditional red roses rested on the ground. The Student Council representative left the tent as soon as we had all entered, but she quickly returned with a small white card in her right hand. She eyed the card, and then the candidates. In a soft voice, she said, "Congratulations, Shari."

Amid congratulations came from the other candidates, then the princess and the student council member quickly got ready for presentation. It was wonderful to share such a moment with the winner, and interesting to see how the other candidates reacted.

The dance was nice. Student Council gave us each a gift and our picture. But it couldn't compare with the crowning or the game for special excitement—the balloons, bands and alumni.

The candidates had to ride around the field and be presented before the game started. After the initial temper flare-ups because of the changes made in the planned program, probably to make a disappointed or temperamental person happy, I had no chance to think of anything but the game.

The first half was exciting, but OU was behind and the team was working so hard. It was heartbreaking. The candidates had the best seats, right on the fifty yard line, so I didn't miss a play.

With half-time ceremonies coming up, I got nervous again. I don't know if the other candidates felt as lucky as I did, but my escort couldn't have been sweeter. One touch of his arm and all nervousness disappeared. He was fabulous. Only one thing could have been better—the final touchdown.

Serendipities, Peterson Coming

Appearing next Friday on campus will be the Serendipity Singers and the Oscar Peterson Trio.

The songsters, sponsored by the Ford Motor Company, will hold their show at 8 p.m. in the Fieldhouse. Only Omaha University students will be eligible to attend the session and must present an activity card at the door. No tickets will be sold.

The Serendipities have recorded a number of albums and appeared on six nationwide

New Sticker . . . Square

The need for new stickers arose after the university issued some six thousand windshield stickers that were in violation of the state motor vehicle code at the beginning of the semester.

Square Stickers

Shortly thereafter, this fact was brought to the attention of the university administration by members of the Gateway staff.

The new stickers for students are square in shape and bordered in red. Except for shape they resemble closely the same permits that were issued last fall.

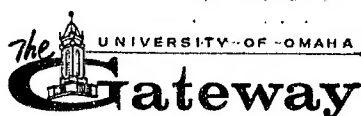

All previous permits issued by the university should be removed according to Dean Pflasterer.

television hootenany programs.

This will mark the first time the Oscar Peterson Trio has appeared in the midwest. They have confined their appearances in the past primarily to New York and Chicago.

According to William Gerbracht, Director of Student Activities, said if the performance achieves a good turnout from the student body, more programs may be planned for the future.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Homecoming festivities were delightful! I enjoyed observing the afternoon dance in the O-U-ampi Room, and later the chuckwagon dinner, the pep rally and the crowning of the Homecoming princess. The performance of the "Four Lads" was well received, I am told, and a good time was had by all. Well, almost all. I was denied admission.

Not one word was mentioned about my religion. Nor a peep about my race. Even the color of my skin did not seem offensive. And my attire that evening was met without harsh criticism. Yet I was refused admittance simply because I had no date.

Why should I, a married man whose wife cannot possibly be here with me, be prohibited from viewing such fine quality entertainment, alone?

Respectfully,
Thomas J. Doubek

More

Dear sir:

Many "Bootstrappers" attending the University have wives in other places of the country, and, due to financial and other reasons cannot accompany the husband to school here. Schoolwork accounts for a large amount of time, but the weekends are long.

Diversions such as activities surrounding Homecoming weekend were wonderful. Many of us attended the chuckwagon supper and pep rally on Friday night and the game against Drake on Saturday.

A "Letter to the Editor" last week encouraged "Bootstrappers" to participate in these extra-curricular activities.

Despite official school publicity announcing that admittance to a dance featuring the "Four Lads" would require only an activity card, many of us suffered the indignity of being refused admittance because of a "last minute" rule that couples only would be admitted.

The rule is not a bad one and would not have caused any ill-feelings had it been announced in advance. Let's hope this incident has not embittered very many people, but it was unfortunate.

I, for one, intend to attend all school activities in the future that hold interest for me and for which I feel I will be welcome.

Sincerely,
William P. Hardeman

* * *

Mr. Hardeman,

Mr. Doubek

Your lamentations are indeed valid.

After checking the University of Omaha's Student Handbook, I can find no rule that can bar you, or for that matter, any single university student from attending an all-school dance.

We of the Gateway feel that you, and others that I have not heard from, were unnecessarily embarrassed and are due a written, public apology from those responsible.

The so-called "rule" that barred many single persons from the Homecoming dance was perhaps a measure aimed at keeping unsavory persons out that could have disrupted the occasion. However, I fail to see how commissioned officers in the Armed Forces of the United States (Bootstrappers) could be termed as unsavory and thus refused admittance.

Dr. Ingham . . . uses reflector in TV biology class.

TV Biology Opinions Varried

By Jim Mone

With four weeks of school down and the first test in Introduction to Biology, the students of the TV class voiced their attitudes toward the course.

Taught by Dr. Charles Ingham, the course is the first to originate from the Omaha University TV studios. The enrollment figures are over three hundred, with part of the students watching the production live in the studio, and the others in three rooms in the Applied Arts building.

It was found students were quite distraught that they were unable to ask questions during the lecture. One student added that when he had a question, he forgot it when he was able to ask the discussion group teacher.

The students in the studio seemed to enjoy the course more than if they were upstairs. One student, Russell Rocheford, said that sometimes the studio, with cameras and other equipment was a distraction.

The studio classroom offers the students with the liveness of the program and enables them to see the instructor before and after class. Many others added that they would not take another TV course unless they were able to be in the studio.

Quality and technical excellence mark the picture as viewed by the student. Illustrations, drawings, teacher's notes, specimens, etc., are produced on the screen in multiplications of their normal size.

With a reflector apparatus, Dr. Ingham can put notes on a paper thus reflecting the image onto the close TV camera. Previously, a blackboard was employed, but due to size of writing and time involved, the camera was only on the board for a short time, making note-taking hard.

Contrary to studio classroom students who liked the studio, second floor students were not akin to trading places with the "studio kids". Karen Sullivan felt that the studio would be a distraction and preferred to retain her seat in the applied arts room.

A Glimmer . . . .

In the midst of all the gloom following two straight losses, Omaha University football fans can see a glow on the horizon. Coach Al Caniglia expressed doubt before the season that this club could come close to matching the record of any one of the last three OU editions.

In spite of a sputtering offense at times, and a pass defense that has failed to live up to our wishes, the sophomore studded Indians have compiled a creditable 3-3 record that has included nary a game with a winning or losing margin of more than one touchdown.

With a few breaks, both from Lady Luck and a couple that could have been manufactured, Omaha might just as easily be 5-1, as is their foe of tomorrow, Washburn.

Mistakes have hurt badly. There's no denying that point. But the club has shown flashes of championship poise and smoothness at times that makes one feel warm all over when thinking in terms of the next two years.

The offensive backfield has been brilliant at times, average at others. Marlin Briscoe and Gerry Allen make up an exciting combination that has few rivals. With a freshman halfback named Rick Davis waiting eagerly for 1965, next year's OU backfield could be the most explosive in history.

The line play by Don Watchorn's defensive troops, one of the pre-season weak points, has been brilliant in several games and never bad. Watchorn's knack for turning out gritty defenders hasn't been dulled in the least.

Spirit this week has been the best since the Northern Illinois game. I might be going out on a limb by saying it, and I'll be the first to eat my words, but if all these things are signs of what I observe them to be, taking the CIC championship from Omaha may be harder than some people believe.

Watchorn

Washburn will pay for the last two frustrating weekends. The Indians are still champions until proven differently, I don't think this will be the week!!

A Good Show . . . .

Last week's Homecoming Pep Rally far outshone even the best previous efforts. It has to be the liveliest rally in years. Emcee Dave Blackwell added just the right amount of mirth and his jokes brought honest laughter.

Much applause should be delivered to the Student Council, the Cheerleaders, Indiannes, Jack Malik and his fine band, and especially the students who took the time to attend.

The game was no different . . . the crowd was appreciative and showed the most spirit seen in the Stadium in three seasons. If you could ignore the flies and the smell from strategically located piles of fertilizer (au natural) in Elmwood Park, it was a most enjoyable afternoon in spite of the score.

Wide Audience . . . .

Tomorrow's important clash has attracted much publicity to the South. WIBW-TV of Topeka will carry the game live to the Kansas city.

One Topeka radio station will carry play-by-play also, and of course, WOW-TV will have Steve Bell and Bob Wilson mikeside for Omaha video fans who can't make it out to the Stadium.

It's unfortunate that Omaha radio stations do not seem interested enough or unable to carry Indian road games at least. The night games have been carried in the past and day games could be taped and replayed at night after other commitments are over.

Radio coverage of away games serves to keep fans informed as well as letting them know what is going on when it happens without waiting for the morning paper.

Someone, somewhere, in a position to do so, ought to make it his business to try and sell this program to local radio. With the proper push from the OU administration, plus a reasonable rights fee scale, broadcasting Omaha road games and even home games could be arranged.

No Substitute . . . .

Fans who dispute that a ballplayer is 95% desire and 5% talent may have had a change of heart after observing Drake's diminutive Steve Valasek in action.

The pint-size (5-9, 144) pass catcher showed partisans great speed, quick hands and some fancy moves. The Bulldog star left no doubt as to why he is among the nation's leading pass receivers, in spite of his size.

His vital fourth quarter catch that set up the winning Drake touchdown might have been batted down or intercepted, but a guy like Valasek, who wants to win more than anything else, probably earns one like that every so often. A better competitor has rarely been seen here at OU in the past.

Mile Run To Start At 4:00

The One-Mile team race this afternoon at 4:00 on the Stadium track highlights this week's Intramural activities at Omaha U.

Basketball schedules have been completed and will be ready on Wednesday, November 4th. Managers are asked to pick them up in the Intramural Office, Room 250 of the Student Center.

Bowling Results

Bootstrappers and PiKaps continue to set the pace in the Intramural Bowling League at West Lanes. The two teams are tied for the league lead with 14 wins and two losses.

High team series and high team game records both belong to the Bootstrappers with 2151 and 819 marks. Johnny Gomez of the Lambda Chi Team has the high individual series, a 642, while the high individual game belongs to Ken Socka with a 253.

Bob Olson of the Sig Eps rolled a 641 for the high series of the past week.

Borsheim Sees A Scrap For Loop Basketball Title

Coach Jim Borsheim is putting his 15 man squad through its paces in the Fieldhouse as the second week of practice at OU comes to a close.

Contacted Wednesday, the head coach stated that it was too early for an individual player estimate, but that the squad appeared to be coming along well.

Mr. Borsheim looks for Pittsburg, Washburn and Emporia as conference powers. He points out that OU lost good material in Paul Kaster, Bernie Miller and Mike Demkowski from last year's 12-11 conference runnerup.

The Indians open a 21-game schedule on December 1st at Midland College. Home opener is December 2nd against Chico State of California.

Six lettermen return for the Indians this year.

Five monogram winners are with the team right now and a sixth, football quarterback Marlin Briscoe, will join the team at the end of the grid season.

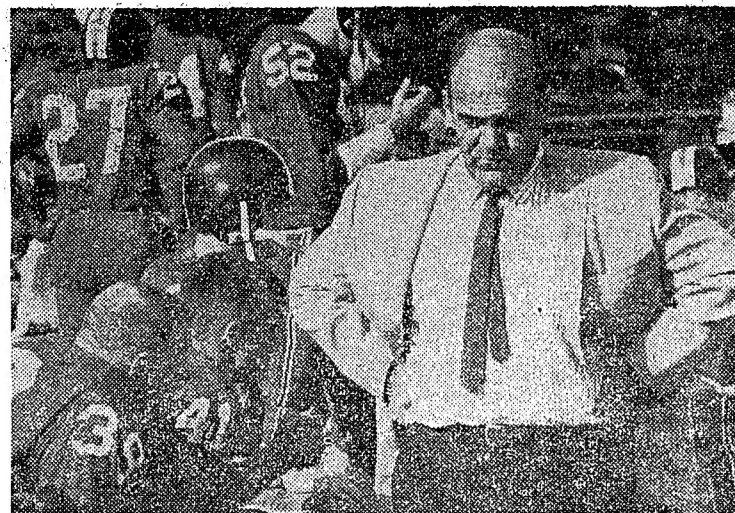

6-8 Ed Woodward is a 1963 letter winner who returns after missing last season because of scholastic difficulties.

Ichabods To Suffer?

CIC Title Hangs On Washburn - O U Fray

Unhappy Caniglia . . . it may be different tomorrow, Al.

By Mike Moran

All eyes will be on Omaha University Stadium tomorrow at two as conference leader Washburn invades the campus for the game that should probably determine the 1964 CIC title.

The high-flying Ichabods are riding the crest of a five game winning streak and have been beaten only by Kearney State of Nebraska, 14-12, in the season's opener for both clubs.

Coach Al Caniglia's Indians, in the throes of a two game losing streak, feel the Kansas team is ripe for a plucking and despite an underdog role, are confident that Washburn will regret its trip north.

Omaha Backfield Shaky

Omaha's attitude is prominent despite an injury plagued backfield situation that sees leading rusher Gerry Allen as a doubtful starter and regular Don Moray still hobbling from an ankle injury suffered two weeks ago.

Allen, who has 489 yards over land in Omaha's 3-3 season, is recovering from a knee injury suffered in OU's painful 24-19 loss to Drake last weekend.

Omaha steamrolled the Bulldogs in the last half to take a 19-18 lead with four minutes left. The game took a turn for the worse with dramatic suddenness as Drake's nifty Steve Valasek fooled Harold Lenz and Cal McGruder for a key pass reception that set up the winning score.

Scouting Report

OU assistant Carl Meyers, who scouted Washburn's 17-7 thumping of Pittsburg State, called the Ichabods a "big, tough team that will try and run over us."

Meyers noted that the Blues of Coach Ellis Rainsberger have good speed and a large line that could present problems.
